FIT-REFORM

444 ST. CATHERINE STREET WEST

SOON he'll be off for the trenches "Somewhere in France." How intimately the gift of a wrist watch will remind him of those at home, particularly if it is a Waltham Military Wrist Watch. As manly as a bull terrier or a lion's paw, and just as sturdy to withstand rough usage. Has its own armor plate that keeps the crystal from breaking. Should the crystal meet with mishap the protecting device keeps the Waltham in regular use until such time as a new crystal can be secured. The Waltham Military Wrist Watch possesses the same degree of accuracy that has made the "Waltham" the timepiece of the world. Can be had in seven or fifteen jewel grades at $12 or $15. Your jeweller will gladly show them to you. Write for the booklet "Concerning a Timepiece."

113 MCGILL MEN SACRIFICE LIVES IN PRESENT WAR

Well Known Names Found in the List

KILLED ALL OVER EUROPE.

Graduates, Past Students and Undergraduates Are Included Among the List.

That no fewer than 113 McGill men, graduates, past students and undergraduates, have laid down their lives in the present struggle for supremacy, is the interesting claim which a student who has been following the casualties closely, has put forward. To support his claim, this student has prepared especially for McGill Daily the following list of casualties suffered by McGill men on active service:

Armstrong, George, past student, Company Sergeant-Major, 1st Canadian division, killed in action June 3, 1916.

Armstrong, W. C. Arts '16, private, No. 9 Field Ambulance, killed in action, Sept. 30, 1916.

FRESHMEN MEET SOPHOMORES AT STADIUM TO-DAY

Bill Roughton of M.A.A.A. Will Officiate As Starter.

PROF. McLEOD TO REFEREE.

The Large Entry List Gives Promise of Keenest Competition In Events.

This afternoon's Freshman-Sophomore athletic meet, judging from the exceedingly large entry list, should result in a very interesting and closely contested struggle. The events will commence at 2 p.m., with Prof. McLeod as referee, and Bill Roughton, of the M.A.A.A., as starter. A large turnout of Freshmen and Sophomores is expected. The Freshies are resolved to carry off the honours, and the Sophs. are equally determined not to allow themselves to suffer the humiliation of defeat.

Following is the list of officials, and entries:

Referee—Prof. McLeod.

Track Judges—Dr. C. T. Sullivan, chief; Eric Cushing, Bill Gerrie, Glen Hillier, Dr. Harvey, Al. Clark, Prof. Ludlow, E. A. Corbett, Dan Sutherland, Don. Smelzer.

Starter—Bill Roughton, M.A.A.A. Scorers—H. P. Morgan, S. J. Liddy, W. B. Galvin, T. M. Richardson. Clerks of Course—"Dad" Lamb and Frank Common.

Time-keepers—Prof. Brown, Prof. McLeod and Jim Taylor, M.A.A.A.

Announcer—H. A. Melville.

100 Yards—D. J. Beach, J. Block, A. J. Bulger, A. Davy, Wm. Donnelly, D. King, M. Lafleur, Lafontaine, Macy and H. J. Naud.

220 Yards—D. J. Beach, J. Block, A. J. Bulger, A. Davy, Lafontaine, D. King, Macy.

Discus—D. J. Beach and King.

Inter-Faculty Relay—D. J. Beach, 4 entries from Sci. '20.

VARSITY'S HART HOUSE.

Varsity's new Hart House is expected to be opened in the autumn of 1918. It will be one of the largest and best equipped institutions of its kind on the continent. It will contain a large gymnasium and circular track, a swimming tank, boxing and fencing rooms, racquet courts, a theatre capable of seating eight hundred persons, a billiard room and reading rooms. There is also to be a large dining hall to seat three hundred at once. One of the most up-to-date installations will be a cold storage plant. The Hart House will be the centre of all University activities, and will be governed along democratic lines by representatives from all large college organizations.

FIRST MEDICAL UNDERGRADUATE MEETING HELD

First Meeting of the Season is Well Attended.

F. J. SCULLY, '17 CHAIRMAN.

Acting Dean Blackader, Dr. Martin, and Dr. Scane, Registrar of the Faculty Among Speakers.

Freshmen in the Faculty of Medicine were introduced to their Undergraduate Society at the first meeting of the season held in the New Medical building last evening. The president of the Society, F. J. Scully, Med. '17, occupied the chair, and the speakers of the evening were Dr. A. D. Blackader, Acting Dean of the Faculty; Dr. C. F. Martin and Dr. John W. Scane, Registrar of the Faculty.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Scully made reference to the death from wounds of Dr. Blackader's son, Capt. G. H. Blackader, and on motion of H. B. Church, Med. '17, seconded by T. J. Wolff, '17, a vote of condolence on behalf of the Society was extended to the acting dean.

Introducing Dr. Martin as the new honorary President of the Society, Mr. Scully spoke of him as the student's friend, and of the cordial relations which had always existed between him and the students of the upper years. Dr. Martin spoke of the privilege it was to him to be brought into closer contact with the students. Of the objects of the Society, Dr. Martin thought the educational side was the least important, though much might be learned of advantage to the student. The social side he considered of greater value. The need of enthusiasm in the meetings was touched upon by Dr. Martin, who urged the executive to prepare good programmes which might be of interest to each of the five years. In this way a good representation might be secured at each meeting. "As a profession we are lamentably behind in public spirit," said Dr. Martin, "therefore subjects with reference to public health, for example, would be beneficial and of interest to students of all years, and indirectly of practical value to the public."

Dr. Blackader greatly appreciated the courtesy of the Society in extending to him an invitation to address the first meeting of the year. He emphasized the value which the Faculty of Medicine places on the work of the Society in developing the undergraduate in the expression of his individual opinion. The Society, he said, should stand for original work by each member, and not be content with the statement of one man, even though he may be a professor. Each one should read, enquire and investigate for himself and make the Society the place for the expression of the results of his own researches. Papers for presentation before the Society should be condensed, brief, to the point, having only essential matters. Well-thought papers are infinitely better and more profitable than a hastily prepared collection of irrelevant matter. A little well chosen outside reading is very valuable and useful, serving to smooth out the rough places in the routine work of practice, and makes one a better, broader and more appreciated man. Speaking of the lessons which might be learned from the war, Dr. Blackader drew attention to the paramount call to duty, to service, not necessarily in arms, but service to fellow men. The medical profession, he said, was essentially the following-out of this call to service. Those in the medical profession are here primarily to do good, to aid the world's progress in public welfare. Their service should be measured not in dollars and cents, but in the amount of personal service rendered to their fellow men. This should always be the ideal to be followed and to be aimed at by each medical student while here, and in later years of practice.

At considerable inconvenience to himself, Dr. Scane was present, having come to the meeting from his home some distance out of town. He regretted that, for this reason, he was not able to attend the meetings as often as he would like. He trusted that the Medical Society would have a successful year, and touched upon the exceptional circumstances under which the students were working.

At the close of this part of the programme, refreshments were served, and a piano selection was rendered by T. C. Wolff.

OLYMPIC GAMES IN CUBA.

It is stated on good authority that at a meeting of the Olympic Games Committee in Paris it was decided to hold the contests of 1920 in Havana, provided that Governmental arrangements can be successfully terminated.

About a year ago Mayor Freyre, of Andradra, wrote to the committee in charge of the games, and proposed that the next meet be held in the Cuban capital. The committee sent a delegate to look into the matter, and his report evidently made a favourable impression.

BE PLEASANT.

In this hurly-burly world we all have our cares and troubles, to which many often give outward expression in their demeanor by bearing either a heavy brow or an entirely dejected countenance. These people are uncharitable, they are burdening their friends, and let us hope unconsciously, with their own disposition. Upon meeting, instead of greeting in a friendly manner, they allow cares, discontent and unhappiness to be read in their eyes, which are the windows of the soul. Such a demeanor is lowering to the spirits of friends and casts gloom over all.

An old saw says, "Quit going around with a gloomy face." How much better our friends and even ourselves would feel, if we but greeted them heartily and endeavored to make them realize that we were actually pleased to meet them. Moreover, our friends would be glad to see us, knowing that we spread only sunshine and happiness. How often do we hear—"O there comes so-and-so, let us dodge him. I don't want to meet him, he always has his tale of woe."

It is not necessary to wait until we get into the world to practice greeting one's friends. Even here, in our own midst, if we acquire the habit of bidding one another a hearty "Good morning," it would invariably, nine times out of ten, "knock the head off a grouch" or "the blues," which generally take root in the morning and burst into bloom as the day advances, unless shaken off by an effort of the will.

Emerson says, "Life is not so short but that there is always room for courtesy," which indeed is only too true.

There are, however, certain localities wherein Good Fellowship, as we have endeavored to depict it, exists. We were recently told by a traveller of an incident which occurred in a small town he visited. In the morning, before the last step of the staircase had been descended, the office clerk greeted him with a hearty "Good morning, sir! Did you rest well?" and upon passing through to the dining room several gentlemen, although strangers, granted a similar salutation.

Although a perfect stranger, he confessed that he felt perfectly at ease and very much among friends. Fond memories are still retained of that town, in which everyone and at all times, seemed to have a pleasant word for whomever they met.

It is not our desire to uphold those who are too free—we would ever have you recall the words of Lady Montague, "Civility costs nothing, and buys everything." Even should your cares and troubles become preponderating, remember that:

It's easy enough to be pleasant,
When life runs along like a song;
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile,
When everything goes dead wrong.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The annual Freshman-Sophomore sports to be staged at the Stadium to-day should claim the attendance of every student at McGill. There is no admission fee to the grounds, so financial reasons cannot be advanced for absence. The men who are taking part have entered to uphold the honour of their respective years, and it is only right that they should receive the hearty support of not only their class mates, but also of all the members of the University. There will be no speech-making or other preliminaries, the fireworks will start promptly at 2:30 p.m., with no long waits between the acts. Sophomores, do not allow your representatives to go out on the field without your support behind them; fight with them that the Freshies may not lower the proud banner of defiance which you have flung to the breeze. Freshmen, get out and encourage the men who are trying to down the second year; the champions of your cause are at a disadvantage in that their opponents have had the experience of last year's meet. The students of other years have a leaning towards one or the other of the participants, and they should get out to help their favourites.

The splendid response to our appeal for contributions to the columns of the Daily is particularly gratifying. The impression that a daily paper precludes the idea of any attempt at catering to the literary life of the University had seemingly gained credence in the past few years; a belief which had absolutely no foundation in fact. In a community of over nine hundred students it should be a very easy thing to have the whole second page of the paper contain nothing but contributions from those attending the University, and that is the object which we hope to attain. Some can write stories, some poetry; others run to jokes or essays; for, to paraphrase Kipling a little—"each must follow his natural bent." We sincerely hope that the good work will continue, that those who have contributed will continue to do so, and that those who haven't taken the plunge will not remain on the brink, but rather strike out into the current of opinion sweeping through the columns of the paper, always helping to make the Daily more truly representative of the student life at McGill.

A new specimen of a student, a specimen which we hope is uncommon at McGill, presented himself to our gaze yesterday in the lunch room at dinner. We had the misfortune to be seated at the same time with him, and have not quite recovered, as yet, from the effects of our unlucky lot. This freshie, for he certainly was fresh in every sense of the term, kept up a running fire of talk throughout the entire meal. Commencing with the setting of the table, he bothered the busy waiter for a bread knife for fully five minutes, despite the fact that he had not as yet received his serving of bread, and, moreover, an ordinary table knife was in front of him. With the soup course he explained that all soup was 95 per cent. water; when his meat order of veal was brought he informed us that it tasted like fish, and besides, "it is too early for veal, anyhow"; the tomato catsup is only water with a little thickening and colouring matter; his remarks concerning some of the other eatables showed not only bad taste, but bordered on the vulgar. We hope that he will take this as a gentle hint to refrain from like conduct in the future. He succeeded admirably in making a perfect fool of himself, seemingly not satisfied with the efforts of nature in that direction.

The Mystery of the Union or The Vanishing Soup Plates

(NOTE.—At great expense the Daily has secured the services of the writers of the Memoirs of Sprague, Kennedy and Shomlock Shears, to write exclusively for the Daily. Each insists that his hero is the better, so we will leave it to our readers to judge. Next week an adventure of Sprague Kennedy will be featured.)

The soup plate had vanished—in fact one found it hard to believe that it had ever been there. Ida, the waitress, was mystified as the plates had seemingly developed a habit of disappearing from the dining tables in the Union; new plates with the crest of the college and a band near the edge done in red. The manager was worried. It was costing him a pretty penny to replace the china; and the tension of his nervous system was at the straining point. "What was to be done? One day a plate was missing from this table; another day from that—each meal, we mean at dinner and supper, when the dishes were put away there would be one less soup plate.

At last desperate measures were resolved on. Without any warning the doors of the dining room were shut and locked and everyone had to submit to a search before being allowed out. The results were negative—not even a suspicion was developed. Another day a similar procedure was gone through after first having the windows screened and all possible hiding places blocked up. Alas, the criminal ingenuity of the thief was finer than the reasoning of his would-be captors. It was at this point that the services of the world renowned Shomlock Shears were sought.

Ah! Well do I remember the day the message came calling dear old Shears to the solving of the mystery. He was sitting on one of those comfortable straight-backed chairs before the grate playing that "Bully" tune "For Heifer and for Heifer," on his favourite accordion. He was wont to amuse himself in this manner when not engaged in the solving of some crime. I have known him to sit for days at a time in this same position, picking out from a mass of musical memories, the haunting strains of some half forgotten melody. Thus was he engaged when our landlady tapped on the door of our digs in Fakir Street and announced a messenger. "Show him in," said Shears, going on playing.

A man of about 40 years of age entered, and no sooner had the great investigator set eyes upon him than he exclaimed, "Why, you are from the McGill Union, I am sure. I can tell that by the uniform you wear, as well as by the very healthy complexion you possess—that denotes good eating and the meals are fine at the Union, I know. What is your name, my man?"

"Mr. Culler is my name," answered the messenger, "and I have come about the very dining room of which you spoke." He then went on to describe the incidents related in the first part of this story, and ended up with an earnest appeal to the renowned detective to assist in the unravelling of the mystery. Shomlock promised to do all in his power, and Mr. Culler left.

With a sigh of regret, Shears laid aside his beloved accordion, donned his great coat, rang for the chauffeur, and finally took a couple of tablespoonfuls of Tabasco sauce, since he discovered that the "coke" was too hard on his nerves. "Come," he said to me, and of course I needed no second invitation. Of what need is it for me to relate the procedure adopted by my talented companion; the depth of the soup-plates was taken and entered in his note book, the chairs and tables were measured, everything that could be done to solve the mystery was carried out.

I will let Shomlock relate in his own words, as he recounted it to me afterwards, the unfolding step by step of the ingenious plans of the criminal mind. "You will please remember," commenced Shears, "our investigations at the Union. You will recall the fact of my eating there a number of times, and how I was struck by a slight whirling noise unnoticeable save to the trained ear of the detective, and the clatter of knives and forks. Remember how I, each day, ascertained the exact place where the noise was coming from, and then took my seat close to that spot. It was always the same person who seemed connected with the noise—a small dark man with a wild and reckless gleam in his light blue eyes. I analyzed the noise and found it was that of an electric coffee grinder. I did this by means of my noiseophone, as you'll understand."

The noiseophone, I might explain, was a machine invented by Shomlock for the purpose of analyzing sounds. It consisted of a huge horn like a phonograph, with a needle playing on a prepared plate, and a series of diaphragms, which worked pointers on a number of scales. The procedure was simple. A number of tin cans were exhausted of air, and instead filled with vacuum. These were brought to the place where the sound was heard. When the caps of the cans were opened the cans were filled with the sound, and when brought back to the laboratory were opened, and the sound poured into the horn of the Noiseophone. Most ingenious. By turning a crank the noise was broken up, and by reading the indicators on the scales one could tell all the components of the sound. Deuced clever!

"Well," continued Shears, "I trained a very powerful microscope upon this chap and discovered that when no one was looking he would secret a soup plate in his coat, and then a minute or two after the noise of the grinder would start. Upon enquiry down town I discovered that a man corresponding to this one had been selling white soup plates with reddish streaks in them. The solution was simple."

"He was a poor, hard working student, who was endeavouring to acquire an education, but lacked the necessary funds,—he conceived the brilliant idea of grinding up a soup plate each day by means of the grinder attached to the bottom of his chair. The powder he carried away with him, and this is how no soup plate was found on him when searched."

When he got out he would remould the plates from the powder, and sell them. The colouring matter would not be in a set design, but scattered throughout the plate."

"It is strange," I said, "that a man with so great brain power should not secure more lucrative work, work requiring less hard work."

"Ah, Watsane," murmured the great detective, "the workings of the minds of the criminally educated are wondrous."

And so closed one of the most interesting cases I have ever had the pleasure of being associated with.

STUDENTS TO USE THE CENTRAL Y.M.C.A.

Arrangements Have Been Completed For Use of Gym, Tank, etc.

Arrangements have been made with the Central Y.M.C.A. on Drummond Street, for the use of their building for students during the present session.

Since the old University gymnasium at the corner of Mansfield and Burnside streets was pulled down, accommodation for indoor athletic activities has been secured at the M.A.A.A. and the Y.M.C.A. respectively. For the past two sessions the University has been using the gymnasium and swimming pool at the Central Y. M. C. A. for all indoor athletic activities.

The announcement that the University authorities have again concluded arrangements with the Y.M.C.A. for the accommodation of the students is a welcome one. While the military activities will and should demand the chief attention of the entire student body, there will be certain forms of work conducted by the University Department of Physical Education for those students who are not physically fit for military drill, and also for the students of the senior years.

Ample opportunity will be given the students in the battalion to compete in various athletic contests, and special activities will be conducted in the gymnasium and pool as occasion demands. As was the case last year, physical training will be conducted in conjunction with the military.

For the benefit of those students desiring to use the privileges at the Y.M.C.A. building, the following announcement is made:

Upon presentation of the University Grounds Ticket at the Y.M.C.A. desk, each student will be given, without charge, a privilege ticket entitling him to the use of the building, including the gymnasium and pool at the following hours:

Large Gymnasium—Monday, 4 to 5; Tuesday, 4 to 6.15, 7 to 7.45; Wednesday, 4 to 5; Thursday, 4 to 6.15, 7 to 7.45; Friday, 4 to 5; Saturday, 3 to 7.15.

Small Gymnasium—Every day, 5.15 to 6.15.

Swimming Pool—Saturdays, 3 to 6.30; every other day, 5 to 6.30.

All the above hours may be used as free periods until the gymnasium schedule commences, when special hours will be announced for classes, basketball, indoor athletics, swimming, etc.

The special exercise room is available during the afternoon hours for those desiring to take up boxing, wrestling and fencing.

SOPHOMORE'S SECOND MEETING.

The R. V. C. Sophomores held their second meeting of this year yesterday morning, the president, Miss MacNaughton, presiding. The attention of the class was called to the opening of the Delta Sigma Society next Wednesday, and the Misses Ruth Rogers, Fannie Grindley and Gwyneth Craig were chosen War Ministers in the Mock Parliament. Miss Louis MacDonald was elected basketball manager; Miss Betty Abbott, gymnasium representative, and Miss Elizabeth Monk, reporter for the Daily. After some discussion it was decided that the class fee should be seventy-five cents for the present, and that an additional fee should be levied at Christmas time, if it were found necessary. The Misses Wilson, Pickle and Blampin were appointed to assist the class executive in making plans for an event of great importance to the Freshies, which will take place in the near future.

STUDENTS' POST OFFICE.

The University of Pittsburgh has erected a postoffice for use of its students.

ORIGIN OF WORD "LET."

All players of tennis know that when, in serving, a ball is caught by the net, the proper thing is to call out, "Let," and then serve again; but perhaps not all players realize just what this word means. The word originally meant "to hinder," and, when modern tennis players speak it, they are giving it its original and true meaning.

EXEMPTION OF STUDENTS.

LONDON, Eng.—The following arrangements between the army council and the board of education, regarding the exemption of teachers and students have been announced in a circular issued by the board of education to local education authorities: (1) Teachers, full-time students and educational officials who are not passed for general service are not to be called up without reference to the war office, which will consult with the board of education. (2) The procedure now applicable in the case of attested service is to apply to attested and unattested alike, but, in future, reference is to be made to the war office, not to the board of education. (3) Full-time students fit for general service are for the present not to be called up until they attain the age of 18; but the army council may terminate this arrangement after July 31. (4) The army council, on grounds of public interest, is prepared to consider applications, endorsed by the board of education, for the postponement of military service in the case of a strict student of natural science or technology. Applications are to be made by the authorities of universities, technical institutions, etc., in the first instance to the board of education, who will submit them to the army council.

AT THE IMPERIAL.

SOMME BATTLE ON THE FILMS AT IMPERIAL.

Pictures Taken in the Fighting Line,
Which Show War as it Really Is.

Mabel Taliaferro, the fascinating and talented little star, will be seen on the screen on Saturday in "God's Half-Acre," one of the prettiest and most charming stories ever presented in the silent drama. The story deals with a little girl named "Blossom," the servant in an aged folks' home known as "Rainbow's End." The kindly old inmates call her "The Angel of Rainbow's End," as she is forever administering to their wants and their comforts. A well known novelist comes to the home to get material for a certain chapter in a book he is writing. But once he becomes acquainted with "Blossom," he soon finds himself writing her into his book, and she becomes the central character. The story is handled in a pleasing and unusual manner, and there are many surprises and tense situations. The presenting of the colors to the Irish-Canadian Rangers is another highly interesting item of this programme. The Fadette Orchestra make their farewell appearance.

For one week, commencing Sunday, the Imperial Theatre will show the most wonderful film that has ever been produced. It is called "The Battle of the Somme."

What are called "battle pictures" have been rather disappointing up to now, but yesterday's show marks a turning point. A cinematograph man has been in the actual battle this time. When the word came, all along the British trenches on July 1, "Over the top," a man with a camera was in the front trenches with the troops. His pictures will live alongside the greatest histories of the war, and they will tell the story better than any printed words can hope to.

Here on the screen is shown in clear, big pictures, the historic rush over the parapet. Here men are seen, this one with a smile, that one with a tense, set face, swarming over, fighting, and, alas, falling.

Prices of admission will remain the same as heretofore.

ANOTHER MCGILL NAME ADDED TO ROLL OF HONOUR

Pte. Wilmer C. Armstrong's Death in France Reported.

BROTHER ALSO WOUNDED.

Pte. Armstrong, Arts '16, was Also Student of Wesleyan College—His Last Letter.

Official notification was received yesterday by R. W. Armstrong, a Wesleyan College student of the class of Theology '17, that his brother, Pte. William Couiter Armstrong, Arts '16, and also a student of the Wesleyan College, was killed in action on September 30. No particulars were given.

Pte. Armstrong went overseas last February with No. 9 Field Ambulance, in which there are a number of other Wesleyan College students, including his brother, Pte. Frank E. Armstrong, Arts '18, recently wounded, and now a patient in Hammersmith Military Hospital, London. The unit arrived in England in March, and after but two weeks' stay in England was transferred to France, where the men have since been stationed. It is presumed that Pte. Armstrong met his death in the operations on the Somme front.

The deceased young soldier was a native of Shawville, Que., and studied at Albert College, Belleville, Ont., before coming to McGill. While he was taking his course in theology, he was stationed on the Kensington circuit near Huntingdon, Que., for twenty months. He was 26 years of age on August 1 last.

A Wesleyan Theological student, in conversation with the Daily last evening, had the following to say concerning Pte. C. Armstrong:

"Wilmer was a graduate of Arts '16, and left with the 9th Ambulance Corps to go overseas, following his brother Frank; with him went from the class of Arts '16 G. G. Burton and H. H. Hart. His name is on the roll of undying heroes who have sacrificed their lives consciously and willingly in the interests of eternal right."

"A native of Shawville, Que., Wilmer entered McGill from Albert College in 1912, intending later to study theology. Without being obtrusive, he was thoroughly popular amongst his class-mates and acquaintances, and his passing cannot but bring a feeling of sorrow to those who learnt to admire him for his genuine qualities. That he should die in the performance of his duties is what one would expect of Wilmer, for to him duty and honor were inflexible guides."

"There is no epitaph suitable to express the feelings excited by the memory of him who gave his all for his fellows on the distant battlefield. His memorial outlives time in annals of glory in the archives of eternity."

A letter received from Pte. Armstrong by Principal Smythe, of the Wesleyan College, read as follows:

"I hope you will pardon any seeming negligence in answering your letter, which came quite a while ago. The truth is that I had almost finished writing to you about three weeks ago, when we were suddenly called out to report for duty up the line. Since then until quite recently we have been rather busy."

"I was indeed pleased to hear from you and to learn all about the happenings around the college during the closing weeks. It must be a source of gratification to you and the Board of Governors that the college year was such a successful one."

"The conferences will be all over before this, and all the ministers and students will be settling down on their own fields of labor."

"Some time ago we saw a list of the transfers, and noticed that some of our boys' names appeared in it. "Since coming out here we have had some very good services on Sunday mornings. One thing we have noticed is that most of the chaplains that have ministered to us have been Anglican. Not that we haven't enjoyed and appreciated these men's services, but naturally we sometimes wonder where the Methodists, Presbyterians, etc., have all gone to."

"While I think most of us would have enjoyed being able to continue our year's work to the end, I for one have never regretted the day I signed up. We enjoyed our short stay in England, and were much impressed with the country. Since coming to France I have enjoyed the work very much. It is true that there are some things which are not pleasant, but we expected those experiences when we came over here. We have had quite a busy time lately, but now we are back in reserve again. I am sure that you will be glad to know that in spite of the fact that we have been through some very hot corners, that our corps came out without any casualties, excepting, of course, our captain and his batman, who were killed about a month ago, while attached to an infantry regiment."

"We have seen all the other Wesleyan boys who are out here except Christie. We don't seem to be able to find out where he is situated. The remainder are all well, and no doubt you will have heard from them."

"Maxwell has left us temporarily, and is doing Y.M.C.A. work in a town a few miles from here."

"There is very little news that we can give from here, but we will be pleased to hear from you at any time you may find it convenient to write."

UNIVERSITY GIVEN COWS.

HARROGATE, Tenn.—Some of the finest cattle ever owned by Lincoln Memorial University have just been received in a shipment from Ohio. These cattle are the gift of friends of the schools in Ohio, and will be of great value to the dairy interests of the region. As rapidly as possible the school is trying to build up a large dairy industry. It has a farm of 675 acres, and a dairy with modern equipment. Not long ago a fine dairy and stock barn was built through the generosity of a friend in Ohio.

THE OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS COMPANY, LIMITED

REPORTS AND BALANCE SHEET.

For Year Ended August 31st, 1916, Presented to the Shareholders
at Fifteenth Annual Meeting, Held at Montreal, Que., October 12th, 1916.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

A Balance Sheet showing the Assets and Liabilities of the Company, also Profits for the year, is submitted.
The Company's accounts have been audited by Messrs. Creak, Cushing and Hodgson, Chartered Accountants, whose report is presented herewith.
The sum of $8,500 was added during the year to the Company's Pension Fund, which now amounts to $115,000.
The Company's system of country elevators in the Northwest has been increased during the year by 21 buildings, making a total of 168 elevators, with a storage capacity of 5,355,000 bushels, and covering a very wide area of territory. With terminal and country elevators combined the Company's total wheat storage capacity now amounts to 10,335,000 bushels.
The Company's flour mills, elevators and other properties are in first class condition. All charges for repairs and renewals have been written off and the plants maintained at the highest standard of efficiency.
The usual dividends were paid during the year on the Preferred and Common Stocks, and a bonus of four per cent on the Common Stock was provided out of the year's profits, and paid on October 2nd, 1916, making a total distribution of twelve per cent on this issue.
All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) C. R. HOSMER, President.

VICE-PRESIDENT AND MANAGING DIRECTOR'S ADDRESS.
Addressing the Shareholders present, Mr. W. A. Black, Vice-President and Managing Director, said:
It is with pleasure we are again able to present you with a very satisfactory statement.

Notwithstanding the fact that since our last meeting the Government war tax was imposed and was retroactive for a year (which will necessitate our paying a very large sum), we have been able to provide for these taxes out of the year's earnings, pay our holders of Common Stock an increased dividend, and carry forward $34,270.12 to the credit of Profit and Loss Account, which now stands at $846,330.62.

While the earnings shown are about 25% on the Common Stock, it must be remembered that our reserves represented by Contingent Account $1,250,000, and Profit and Loss balance as on August 31st, 1915, $512,060.50, are also Capital, and that taking this into consideration it makes the return about 18%.

While we were not as fortunate in having a large amount of wheat to sell at much enhanced prices, as happened last year, we were more fortunate than in average years in our purchases. We also profited largely in the increase in returns which we received from our investments in business other than flour milling. Our interest charges for borrowed money have been much less owing, of course, to the large Capital now invested in our business which has been accumulating for some years past out of surplus earnings.

Our mills are now fully employed, and have orders ahead to keep them running for some time.

While the wheat crop in the Northwest is less than half of last year's, the yield as an average is little short of what it usually is, and the prices are very much higher. At this date last year October wheat was 98½ cents per bushel; to-day it is 16 cents. The high prices were in effect before the farmers had actually marketed the new crop, so that they will reap the full benefit, and the return to them as a whole will be little, if any, less than the previous year, and with the very high prices prevailing for all farm products, the country should be established on a most substantial basis.

Like many other manufacturers, we have been handicapped by the absence of a large number of our employees who are doing their duty at the front; but are confidently looking forward to the successful conclusion of the war at no distant date.

DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS.

The following gentlemen were elected Directors of the Company for the ensuing year:
